WHEELING, W. VA., JULY 27, 1885.

Concerning the "Bloody shirt." In its latest number Harper's Weekly goes it pretty strong on one idea.

(1) There is a large cartoon, "The Practical Politician's Love for the Negro." white man has pushed a colored brother against a treasury sale. The two face each other. The white man has run his hands under the colored man's arms and is reaching for the cash. A policeman with U. S. on his hat is just appearing on the scene. Why this policeman appears is not told. He isn't around when white men murder colored men at the ballot

(2) A smaller cartoon is entitled, "The Time has Come." Uncle Sam has dug a pit in which he is about to plant the Corner Stone of the New Union. A scroll represents the Republican party, beside which lies the bloody shirt. Our Uncle Samuel remarks: "With this corner stone I bury the bloody shirt, or the party. Choose!"

In an editorial it is remarked that

(3) In an editorial it is remarked that "The New York view plainly is that Democratic offenses in one State [Mississippi, for example] are not good reasons for sustaining Republican offenses in another, and that New York ought to have honest, economical and progressive government whether Arkansas chooses to have it or not."

The bloody shirt is worrying the Democratic party and its allies. They don't like the ringing of the alarm bell by the Republicans of Ohio. With 153 votes votes from the Solid South, and a scratch in New York, they overthrew the Republican party. They realize the national importance of the coming State elections. They lay special stress on the New York election, foreseeing that defeat there will be the humilitation of the administration.

They recognize the growing feeling of hos-They recognize the growing feeling of hosthat political system which bloodies the black man's shirt and makes an election a ghastly farce. They plead with the people not to take these things into account—to do all their vot ng on the bold assumption that the Democratic party is infusing health into a Civil Service that was sick unto death.

Perhaps Harper's Weekly or some other Democratic hand-maid will tell us how and by whom the colored man of the South is to be protected in his political rights—merely his political rights—and what the Union of all the States is doing to carry out the constitutional guarantee to every State of a republican form of gov-

Clever cartoons and able articles are very well in their way, but they do not meet the main question. It may be that the Republican party can be frightened into silence on this subject, but we do not believe it. It cannot be that the wrongs which make the bloody shirt are to be tolerated forever. It must be that sooner or later the conscience of the country will awake. Then the iniquity will go.

Even the burial place of General Grant is the subject of discussion which is not, in all cases, in the best spirit.

It is objected, with some fierceness, that Central Park is essentially a pleasure ground and therefore unfit for the last resting place of the "Old Commander; that the rattling of gay equipages will be a poor requiem for the dead; and more of the same kind.

If the place selected suits the family, we should be disposed to look upon that as closing the case. But it is also to be said that there is nothing in the pleasure features of Central Park to disturb the rest of the dead or to shock the loved ones left behind. And surely the distinction could not be greater than that which New York offers to her late illustrious citizen. It is to be regretted that the choice has not fallen on some spot at the National capital, with which Grant's fame is so intimately associated. There his body should lie, and there should rise to his memory a noble statue to take its place in the open gallery of patriot monumental statuary.

Since the mere resting place of the mortal remains does not restrict the veneration of his countrymen, nothing stands in the way of a worthy Grant statue in Washington. The memorial proposed by the Grand Army of the Republic might well take this shape. This will not interfere with the New York monument, and two such tributes will not be more that a great country can do for so great a man.

Settleg Vanderbilt Right.
Once upon a time Mr. Vanderbilt was quoted as saying, "The people be d-d." This tender sentiment he was understood to apply to the common herd of us who have to labor for a living. From recent developments it appears that we have been doing Mr. Vanderbilt an injustice.

To extend the Reading railroad system in Pennsylvania so as to make it a power-ful rival of the great Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the South Pennsylvania syndicate was formed. The new affair was to be a trunk line from east to west Wheeling was led to believe that she might get a slice of it. Pittsburgh, Leave Bellaire at 4:20 P. M. for Woodsfield. Arrive at Bellaire 8:25 A. M., 11:00 A. M., and 4:00 through the Hostetter and Carnegie infinence, was certain to get her share. Van WHEELING & ELM GROVE R. R. derbilt put in his millions and his name, and the work went on.

On end siter MONDAY, May 4, 1885, trains on ew 4.5 G. R. R. will leave as follows:

save city at 5.50 A. M. 1.00 P. M. 610 A. M. 1.00 A. M. 610 A. M. 1.00 A. M. 610 A. M. 610 A. M. 1.00 A. M. 610 A. M. 6 It was known that the Pennsylvania did not desire this new competitor, but nobody supposed that Vanderbilt would weaken. But these times are pressing upon men of large wealth, and Mr. Vanderbilt feels the pressure. He continues to have a roof and raiment and a New Yorker's two square meals a day. Money is difficult to handle for a good return, and the larger the sum the greater the difficulty. Therefore Mr. Vanderbilt says he will transfer the South Pennsylvania

There is a great to-do over this disclosure. The smaller fish complain that Mr. Vandeshilt is eating them. anderbilt is eating them up. They are not willing to have their tens of thou sands and hundreds of thousands swal owed by the Vanderbilt millions.

It is at this point that the former injus ice to Mr. Vanderbilt appears. When he said "The people be d-d" he did not confine the scope of his remarks to the ommon herd. He ran a line through society-on one side the people, on the other side Vanderbilt, the Vanderbilt

Was He Poisoned?

About two weeks ago Dr. Hale, of Rowlesburg, was found dead in bed. It seems that after his burial suspicions of foul play were had and prosecutor N. J. Fortney, of Kingwood, was sent for, and going to Rowlesburg investigated the direumstances relating to the Doctor's death. The deceased had been on a protracted spree for some days prior to his death. The night it occurred he went to his room about 6 o'clock. There was 2 young woman by the name of Lizzie High, living in the family, and it seems that she occurred he went to his room about 6 o'clock. There was 2 young woman by the name of Lizzie High, living in the family, and it seems that she occurred he with the Doctor. She states that he Doctor awoke about 3 o'clock in the morning and called her up and asked for whisky that she went to a case and got a glass half illed which she gaye him. After he took it he asked where she got it, and on being told, said it was the wrong glass. The Doctor's wife then coming in, said she would get him what he wanted, which she did, and soon left his room, going to her own. An hour later the Doctor was dead. At the instance of prosecutor Fortney the body was disinterred and on Thursday last the stomach and liver taken therefrom and sent to this city for analysis to ascertain whether there was poison used. As yet the result of the analysis has not been made known. Bronke county, W. Va., will begin its Forty-fifth Session SEP (EMBER 24, 1885. It is the most noted College in our State, having 610 Alumni, many of whom are occupying high pittes of trust. It has four College Tegree Courses: the Classical, the Scientific the Ministerial, and the Ladies' Course Scientific the Ministeria, and the Ladies Course. The College is now about free of debt, and the Trustees will make an effort to eplarge the Endrw ment and the number of students. Patronage is solicited from all the friends of classic learning.
